Saravevo. Bosnia. June 28.-The de-camps in a second car and half a heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, and his morganatic wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, were shot to death today while driving through the streets of the Bosnian capital. A youthful Servian student fired the shots that ended their lives and added another to the long list of terrible tragedies that have darkened the reign of Emperor Francis Joseph,

Bomb Thrown at Them. First a bomb was thrown at the au-tomobile they were driving, at the town hall, but being forewarned of a possible attempt against his life, the archduke was watchful, and hurled the missile aside. It fell under an auto-mobile which carried some of the members of his suite, wounding Count Von Boos-Waldeck and Colonel Mer-

Volley of Shots.

On their return from the town hall the archduse and the duchess were driving to the hospital when the Servian, Gavric Prinzip, darted at the car and poured a voiley at the occupants. His aim was true, for the archduke and his wife fell over mortally wounded. With them at the time was the governor of the city, who escaped un-injured. The bodies of the murdered couple collapsed across him and pro-tected him from stray bullets. The governor shouted to the chaufo rush to the palace at top Physicians were in prompt attendance, but their services were use-less, as both were dead before the pal-ace was reached. Until the emperor's wishes are known the bodies will lie in state at the palace here. They will doubtless be interred in the Hapsburg vaults in the Capuchin church at

Town in State of Consteenation. The town of Sarayevo is in a state of consternation. There is mourning everywhere, with black draped flags and streamers on all public buildings. The president has sent a message to the emperor expressing the grief and horror of the whole population at their ruthless crime and assuring His Ma-jesty of the people's unalterable devo-tion to the ruling house.

Weeping Women in Groups.

Throughout the day weeping women were to be seen in groups and great crowds surrounded the spots where the bomb exploded and the fatal shots were fired. The bomb was filled with nails and lead filings and the explo-sion was very violent. The iron shutters on many shops were pierced by flying fragments and iron railings were shattered. In all, about a score of persons were injured, several of them being women and children.

This final tragedy which has come to the house of Hapsburg is the culmination of the personal sorrows that have overshadowed the life of the emperor. His reign began with sinister omens, for he faced internal dissen-sions and external aggressions from the moment he came to the throne. In 1853 the list of tragle incidents began with an attempt upon his own life, when a Hungarian named Lebenye wounded him with a knife. Fourteen years later his brother, Archduke Max-imilian, emperor of Mexico, was captured by those who rose against him, condemned to death by court martial and executed. Then followed the burning to death of a niece in Vienna, a sister in Paris, and the death by suicide in Strahrenberg lake of a cousin. In 1898 the emperor's wife, who was a daughter of Maximilian Joseph, duke of Bayaria, was stabled to death at Geneva by a mad Italian anarchist. They had been estranged for many years, but the emperor had never seased to show a deep affection for

Mysterious Death of Crown Prince Rudolph.

Less than ten years before the em-peror's only son, the Crown Prince Ru-dolph, a man of ability and promise upon whom the Austrians had pinned their hopes, met death in a mystery which to this day has not been clear-ed. On January 30, 1889, his dead body was found in a hunting lodge at Meyerling, not far from Vienna. Be-side his body lay that of Baroness Marc Valzera.

Archduke Charles Francis, known popularly as Karl, who becomes heir to the Austrian throne, owing to the morganatic birth of Archduke Fran-cis Ferdinand's children, debarring their succession, has been carefully educated with a view to fitting him for the position of emperor. He dif-fers from all other members of the imperial family in as much as he is the first member of the imperial house to have been educated in the public schools of Vienna.
